Part I

The Treasure of Lemon Brown

- (ii) Lemon Brown threatens to hurt Greg
- (iii) He died in the war.
- (i) to escape the thugs
- Lemon Brown says this about Greg because he understands that the things that Lemon Brown has are real treasure for him and are worth fighting for. Moreover, Lemon Brown compares Greg to the neighbourhood thugs and says that he is better than those scalawags.
- Thinking skill: Explaining cause and effect
Greg stops worrying about Lemon Brown because he is leaving for St. Louis in the morning and won't be threatened by the thugs again.

Thinking skill: Inferring

I infer that Greg stops worrying about lemon Brown because he is leaving to St. Louis which is far from this city in the morning.

Supporting detail: During their conversation lemon Brown mentions twice that he is leaving to St. Louis .

Part II

A Summer's Reading

6. (ii) She gives George spending money.
7. (iv) He is older than other kids.
8. (iii) doesn't know what to say
9. (iv) asks different questions
10. Thinking Skill: Inferring

I infer that Mr. Cattanzara spreads the rumor that George has finished reading books because he wants to motivate him to start reading books. Moreover, Mr. Cattanzara wants George to take responsibility for his education so he doesn't tell anyone the truth about George's reading books.

Part III:

11. Thank You, Ma'm

The quote reflects the main idea of the story 'Thank You, Ma'm'. Just as the quote says, Mrs. Jones didn't judge Roger for stealing her purse. She tried to help Roger and teach him a lesson to tell right from wrong. Moreover, Mrs. Jones didn't try to decide whether Roger deserved her kindness. She took Roger home, asked him to wash his face, comb his hair and then shared her meal with him. Mrs. Jones was just kind to Roger though he tried to steal her purse.

12. The Road Not Taken

The main idea of the poem is reflected in the quote. We make decisions all the time and sometimes it is very difficult for us to decide. The poem also tells about making decisions. The speaker has to choose one road while standing at the fork of "two roads that diverged in a yellow wood". He checks both roads and compares them. He is free to make his decision as John C. Maxwell says in his quote. The speaker also accepts the results of his actions because he is talking about his decision with "a sigh" of relief because this decision "made all the difference" in his life.
